The Internationaler Hochschulferienkurs für Germanisten, organized by the Friedrich Schiller Universität, Jena, had as its theme: "Ursprünge und Stellung der Romantik und ihre Aneignung und Rezeption in der sozialistischen Gesellschaft." A number of distinguished scholars contributed with lectures and colloquia, among them Dr. Walter Dietze, Weimar ("Urworte, nicht sonderlich orphisch"), Dr. Günter Hartung, Halle (with a stimulating presentation which dealt with the song "Der Lindenbaum", Wilhelm Müller/Franz Schubert), and Prof. Dr. Hans-Dietrich Dahnke, Berlin ("Ursprünge und Stellung der deutschen Frühromantik"), Prof. Dr. Klaus Trüper, Leipzig ("Historizität und Erbe der Romantik"), and Prof. Dr. Hans-Georg Bernet, Halle, who discussed the methodological problems of vol. VII/2 (Klassik/Romantik) of the History of German Literature. The scholarly papers were supplemented by Günter de Bruyn reading from his book Das Leben des Jean Paul Friedrich Richter, which provided insight into sociological conditions of Jean Paul's time.

In spite of its focus on the romantic period in German literature, the program consisted of a wide range of topics, such as cultural politics, politics of higher education, foreign and economic policy, sociolinguistic developments (Prof. Dr. Thea Schimpf, Erfurt) and GDR literature of the seventies (on poetry: Dr. Klaus Krippendorf, Jena; on drama: Dr. Klaus Hämmer, Jena; on the novel: Dr. Sigrid Lamm, Berlin). Among the Arbeitsgemeinschaften on language, literature or teaching methods in German as a foreign language, I chose the one offered by Prof. Hans Richter, Jena. Under his thoughtful guidance, theoretical and poetic texts by GDR authors were explored to arrive at an understanding of the self-receptions of these authors within GDR society. Among the authors considered were Günter Kunert, Volker Braun, Christa Wolf, Anna Serber.

Among the numerous performances and excursions were Ein Gespräch im Hause Stein über den absehenden Herrn von Goethe, a play by Peter Hacks, followed by a discussion with the director of the Maxim Gorki Theater, Berlin, the actress Karin Gregor and Peter Hacks himself, as well as the film Herr, ich lebe (Buch: Wolfgang Kohlhaase, Regie: Konrad Wolf) a glimpse of the daily course of production which also included in the program. After touring the Maschinenkombinat in Soebach, we had the opportunity to discuss the process of production and the organization of the entire complex in Soebach with workers from the plant.

On the whole, it was felt that - in contrast to the previous institutes - a more open and intense exchange of views was characteristic for Weimar in 1977. Discussions continued long beyond the official part of each day's program with lively interaction among participants from an amazing large number of countries. Without doubt, this result may be attributed to a flexible and attentive organizational staff.

RESEARCH IN PROGRESS

A team of scholars working in the field of GDR literature is preparing an analysis of the works of Christa Wolf. Several chapters are still open for colleagues interested in joining this team publication effort.
