Workshop Summary

Background
I previously have presented workshops on time management in 2007, 2009, 2012 and 2013 to the Academic Chairpersons Conference (ACC). Both of these workshops were very well attended and the feedback from the participants were overwhelmingly positive. I was recently encouraged to offer the workshop again. In times where academic departments around the world are experiencing budget cuts and increased demands for effectiveness and accountability, the subject of time management continues to be as timely for department chairs as ever before. An outline of the proposed workshop is as follows:

Session Outline:

What is Time Management?
• Characteristics of Time
• Some Misconceptions about Time Management
• The inter-relationship between the five basic resources: Time, Money, Human, Physical and Information Resources

Managing Workflow
• Do, Delete, Delegate or Defer?
• Prioritizing Tasks
• Urgency versus Importance
• Pay-off versus Effort required

Table Discussion on Time-Wasters
• What are the top time wasters?
• Who is responsible for them?
• How can they be eliminated?

A Time Management Study
